STIMSON'S HEADACHE

GILLINGHAM have a tough assignment in the North East this weekend as they visit Darlington hoping to post their first win of the season.

Mark Stimson's side have endured a difficult start to life in League Two with one point from two matches. The team were booed off the pitch by fans at Priestfield after Saturday's lacklustre 1-0 defeat to Luton Town.

To make matters worse, Stimson revealed after the match that he had a disruptive player in his squad who threatened to upset it's unity.

It will be a depressing echo for fans of last season, which was hampered by a now-departed clique in the squad whom Stimson felt did not share his plans for the club.

FRONTLINE police officers in Medway were assaulted more than 160 times in the last two years – equating to one attack every four days.

The Kent police figures, obtained using the Freedom of Information Act, show 168 'assaults without injury' were filed between April 2006 and March of this year.

The number of more serious attacks on Medway officers during the same period is not collated, but could bring the frequency of assaults up to one every three days.

Across Kent, nearly 2,000 officers have encountered violent situations with offenders in the past two financial years, at a rate of almost two attacks per day.

Officers in Mid-Kent were the most attacked, suffering 347 incidents. West Kent officers were assaulted the fewest times, but still had to endure 190 assaults.

The year-on-year figures paint a more positive picture, with the number of assaults dropping from 763 in 2006/07 to 634 in 2007/08, a 16 per cent reduction.

Assistant Chief Constable Gary Beaubridge said: "The safety of the public and our officers is paramount. Our officers receive specific training to enable them to deal with public order incidents.

"We do not tolerate attacks on police officers and anyone found committing these offences will be arrested and brought before the courts."

Kent police chiefs also said body cameras introduced throughout the force were already helping to secure prosecutions against those who attack their officers.

Regeneration plans 'will not be crunched'

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

COUNCIL chiefs have rejected claims that the credit crunch will leave regeneration plans for Chatham facing a multi-million pound shortfall.

The Liberal Democrats raised fears about the ongoing work to redevelop the town centre, saying similar plans adopted by Brighton and Hove council had ground to a halt after cash-strapped financiers pulled out of a £300 million deal.

Medway council's Lib Dem deputy group leader Cllr Andy Stamp said: "We must be realistic and not in denial about the impact of the credit crunch on the council's vision for Chatham."

"We should have measures in place to ensure the regeneration doesn't grind to a halt. Yet the council appears to be adopting the 'hold tight and hope for the best' strategy."

But council leader Cllr Rodney Chambers said the Chatham plans were well placed to weather the economic storms.

He said: "The downturn is a cyclical part of the economy and occurs as a natural part of a free market. The Medway Regeneration will take 20 years and we can expect to experience two downturns in that time - with the inevitable booms following.

"Present conditions are expected to last three to five years, after which the economy will see an uplift."

"In Medway we will be putting in the infrastructure ready for when the market recovers."

"Our activities during the downturn will be focused on road, rail and general transport improvements, preparing sites for development, securing planning permissions."

Race for Life cash appeal

WOMEN who took part in this year's Race for Life in Gillingham are being urged to summon the energy for one last dash - for cash.

Organisers at Cancer Research UK are concerned that not all participants who walked, jogged or ran the 5k course at Capstone Farm Country Park have returned their sponsor money.

They are appealing to those whose cash has still not materialised to make a special effort to ensure that the £1.4million target set for all Kent events can be achieved.

Nationally, one-in-three women who participated in the Race for Life series last year failed to raise funds for Cancer Research UK.

Spokeswoman Natasha Etienne said the 2008 Race for Life Kent events were a tremendous success, with 20,000 women taking part.

But she warned: "Regrettably, it is not unusual for charity events to suffer from a minority of participants failing to raise funds. Yet if one-in-three don't send back their sponsorship money, our ability to support world class science is affected."

"Women who got people to sign their sponsor forms should show their medal with pride and chase those who pledged cash."

For information on how to return sponsorship money, or to make a donation, visit www.raceforlife.org or call 0871 641 228.

Five years for driver who killed teenagers

I will never forgive him says mother

BY KEVIN O'SULLIVAN

A FORMER soldier who was "mucking about" before losing control of his car and killing two teenage passengers was jailed for five years on Friday.

Shaun Waters, 22, of Magpie Hall Road, Chatham, smashed head-on into a lorry after dangerously "snaking" left and right in his mum's Ford Escort on the A20 near Lenham in February last year.

Maidstone Crown Court heard that the ex-squaddie caused the smash that killed Daisy Washington, 14, from Ashford, and Joseph Bunce, 17, from Harrietsham.

Judge James O'Mahony told a packed courtroom how not even a sentence of 100 years could bring back the victims.

He said: "I am desperately sorry for the family and friends and loved ones of the deceased.

"It has caused them suffering and desperate agony. I am very conscious that for some perhaps naturally and understandably that no sentence imposed would be too high. If I were to pass sentence of 100 years, that would not restore those lost lives."

Judge O'Mahony said a witness described Waters as driving like a "total idiot" before he mounted a verge and veered into the oncoming HGV.

"You were driving like an idiot, mucking about. First you moved the car off a straight line. Then you carried a series of definite, snaking moves."

The court heard how sport-loving Daisy's schoolfriend Elena Cowell, 15, sustained a fractured skull, broken arm, leg, jaw, cheekbone and nose in the crash. Waters was also hurt, but incredibly his five-year-old stepdaughter – whom he had picked up from primary school with the three teenagers – escaped unhurt. She was the only passenger wearing a seatbelt.

Judge O'Mahony said: "Those who died were not wearing seatbelts. Elena was very seriously injured. It was a horrible accident and you were responsible. You have to pay the price."

Waters denied two charges of causing death by dangerous driving, but was convicted last month.

Daisy's mum Karen, 41, said the sentence would never have been enough. "Daisy was such a lovely girl – she was always joking around," she said. "I will never, ever forgive him."

Waters, who served with the Royal Engineers based in Gillingham, was also banned from driving for seven years.

ON HOLIDAY: Medway beauty Kelly Brook

Kelly enjoys a Riviera break with the girls

GLAMOUR girl Kelly Brook has jetted off to the French Riviera after calling time on her relationship with Hollywood hunk Billy Zane.

The Rochester-born beauty's mum Sandra Parsons said Kelly was relaxing in St Tropez after dumping Titanic star Billy, 42, for the second time.

Speaking to the Daily Express on Thursday, Sandra said: "She isn't here. She is holidaying with some girlie friends.

"Yes, she has split from Billy Zane. I think this time it really is for good. But there is no need to worry about her. She is feeling fine and doing well."

The couple temporarily split in April, with Strictly Come Dancing star Kelly, 28, reportedly confiding in friends that she was too young to settle down.

The pair patched things up a week later but are now believed to have split for good.

They own a luxury farmhouse in the village of Grafty Green, near Maidstone.

Scirocco on a Moroccan roll

TWO health workers are gearing up for a mammoth charity drive next month when they motor from Medway to Morocco in just 12 days.

Rehab assistant Glen Place, from Burham, and co-driver Andy Ward, from Nottingham, have kitted out a 20-year-old VW Scirocco for the challenge – allowing them to aptly dub the 4,000 mile trip Scirocco 2 Morocco.

The pair will set off for Africa from the Bluebell Hill picnic area at 5pm on Saturday, September 6.

Glen said: "A lot of people have asked, 'Why Morocco?'"

"Well, it just happens to rhyme with Scirocco, so the name sort of took care of itself."

"We have been hard at work preparing the car for the long journey ahead and have even had a trailer made out of another VW Scirocco to help us carry the supplies we will need to accomplish our challenge."

They hope to raise £1,500 for Macmillan Cancer Support, Leukaemia Research and the Lincolnshire and Nottinghamshire Air Ambulance.

end became the first man to be convicted using such technology, receiving an 11-year sentence for hitting a policeman across the head with a samurai sword.

Chief Superintendent Paul Brandon, area commander for North

Kent, said: "The body-worn video technology we are now using is a valuable tool for policing in the 21st century, especially when we can show a court and jury first-hand footage of the incident or the aftermath and impact on the victim, as we saw in this case."

After a successful trial in North Kent, every officer on core response now has a body camera available. A further 80 will be introduced in the coming weeks to officers working in neighbourhood teams, training and development units including probationary units and tactical teams.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Primary pupils excel
in English and maths

RECENT figures indicate that primary school-leavers across the county have yet again achieved their best-ever results in English and mathematics, improving in both subjects at level 4 – the target pupils of this age are expected to obtain before moving to secondary school.

Every year for the past five years the proportion of pupils achieving the expected level has risen in mathematics. This year, the difference between the county and national figure has narrowed significantly with Kent schools improving by 2.5 per cent, compared to the one per cent national rise.

In English, overall results mirror national outcomes and is the best-ever result. Improvements in reading are particularly good, with an increase of 2.6 per cent, another 405 pupils, achieving the expected level compared to a national rise of two per cent.

There have also been higher levels of achievement in reading, mirroring the successes of children in both the early years and Key Stage One.

University expert in call to change drug use laws

A SENIOR academic has hit out at the Government's drug policy saying the UK should learn from countries which adopt a different approach to the problem.

Dr Alex Stevens, who heads the European Institute of Social Services at the University of Kent in Canterbury, believes they should be decriminalised, as convicting users wasted police time and money.

He said: "Nobody is saying that dangerous drugs should be sold legally to anyone who wants them at whatever price."

"But we should learn from other countries that have reduced the criminal penalties that they use for drug users without increasing drug problems."

Railway guards and pay
row could end in strike

TWO separate disputes about the role of guards on new trains and a pay offer could see the county's railways grind to a halt.

Results of ballots on strike action starting next week will be known in September, said Bob Crow, general secretary of the Rail, Maritime and Transport union.

Southeastern urged workers to vote in favour of the "good" 4.3 per cent pay deal, and said RMT objections to changed roles for guards came as a "disappointment".

But union representatives remain unconvinced. About 750 retail and engineering workers will be balloted for strikes over the pay offer, the RMT said, while up to 500 guards, drivers and customer service staff are set to vote on the safety role of guards on trains.

City landmark unfurls
Olympics countdown

BY SIMON ROBINSON

A COMMEMORATIVE Olympic flag will be unfurled at Rochester Castle this weekend to mark the official countdown to London 2012.

The flag will start its journey at Chatham Historic Dockyard at 2pm on Sunday, where it will be taken along the River Medway by two Army boat crews.

Medway's young elite athletes and 1964 Olympic race walking silver medallist Paul Nihill will take charge of the flag at the jetty near Rochester Castle at 2.10pm, before handing it over to Mayor of Medway David Carr.

Cllr Carr will then raise the flag at precisely 14.33 – with the time matching the 1,433 days until the start of the London Games.

Similar events will take place across the country, led by the official handover of the Olympic flag from the Mayor of Beijing to Mayor of London Boris Johnson.

Preparation

The 2012 flag will enter the country at Dover – carried by rowing star Hannah Moon, who is looking to make her mark on the Games in four years' time – before heading up through Kent to the capital.

Thousands of people are expected to turn out at events scheduled at locations across Kent, including Maidstone, Ramsgate and Herne Bay.

Stars including past and future Olympians are set to be on hand to commemorate the event which is the first major highlight of the UK's preparation for the global Games.

Street parties, fireworks, sports events and other celebrations are also being organised in many towns and villages.

Celebrations planned for Ramsgate are tied

A PLACE IN HISTORY: The 1,433-day countdown to the 2012 London Games will be marked by the unfurling of an Olympic flag at Rochester's Norman castle at 14.33 on Sunday, to coincide with other commemorations nationally in with the opening of the new athletics track at the Marlowe Academy – which could host teams training sessions in the run-up to the 2012 event itself.

A family fun run will take place and there will be demonstrations of athletic skills from nationally recognised performers.

Training facilities to reap Olympic reward

THERE are 36 venues in the county hoping to cash-in on the 2012 Olympic Games in London by providing training facilities for teams around the world.

Details of the sites are being circulated to national Olympic committees with a hope they will play host to teams in the years leading up to the Games.

Our sports reporter David Pritchard paid a visit to one of the site's on the shortlist, the trampolining centre in Gillingham, to find out how it got on the list and what it hopes to achieve.

Herne Bay has been selected as a site for one of the large screens which will show BBC coverage of the handover.

Ian Wynne, 30, from Tonbridge – kayak bronze medallist at the Athens Games in 2004 – will be taking part and other events include a Tour d'Herne Bay cycle ride.

The flag will arrive by river in Maidstone which will also host live music and a parade while Charlton Athletic FC will be assisting in celebrations in Tunbridge Wells.

Free swimming to commemorate Britain's success in the Beijing pool will be held at leisure centres in Canterbury, Thanet, Ashford, Swale and Dover.

Highlights

Kent County Council's community services chief, Mike Hill, said: "The recent spectacular opening of the Beijing Games really heightened the excitement for London's Olympics and the handover day is an excellent way for us in Kent to celebrate and enjoy the atmosphere of being the host country."

"There really is something for everyone on Sunday and it highlights how the Olympics are an opportunity to feel proud of what we have to show the world."

JUST THE TICKET: Taxi drivers are pleased with the compromise which will see the return of waiting-bays

Cabbies settle dispute over loss of ranks

A LONG-RUNNING parking dispute between taxi drivers and regeneration chiefs has been settled – with more than 30 spaces being re-opened in Chatham town centre.

The compromise will see Medway's taxi drivers return to the waiting bays in the Brook, helping to alleviate the congestion around the Military Road access point.

Ian Walton, vice-chairman of Medway Licensed Taxi Drivers' Association, said: "This is the first time anyone has wanted to listen to us – for too long the taxi drivers have been ignored as an insignificant voice in Medway."

"On behalf of the taxi drivers we are very pleased with the Medway regeneration officials. The proposals outlined appear to be workable and we will liaise with officials to work in the best interest of all taxi drivers in Medway. The regeneration of Chatham is important to everyone but more so vital to our livelihoods."

During negotiations Medway Renaissance bosses also presented the taxi drivers with outline plans for the new bus station, including the replacement taxi rank.

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

Association committee member Sean Riley said: "The construction and completion of the new bus station will take time and all we wanted was an intermediate solution that will minimise congestion and be safe for customers."

"This has never happened before. We have finally been listened to and we hope this continues."

Association members paid tribute to Chatham and Aylesford MP Jonathan Shaw for his work in mediating between both sides.

Mr Shaw said: "Taxi drivers are important to the local transport network and they felt they were being treated with contempt and were having changes enforced on their business without the appropriate levels of consultation."

"With more than 500 drivers in the Medway towns, no one knows the local roads and streets better than the taxi drivers."

Mr Shaw added: "I am pleased Medway Renaissance and the taxi trade have worked together to resolve the matter."

"I am sure this will be the start of a very productive relationship that will benefit everyone who uses the road network."

Behind the scenes at pet hospital

ANIMAL-LOVERS are being given the chance to gain a behind-the-scenes look at Gillingham PDSA PetAid hospital on Saturday.

Visitors will be able to meet the centre's veterinary team and take guided tours of the Campus Way hospital.

Senior veterinary surgeon Paul Walding said: "If you are interested in veterinary work or simply curious to see how a PetAid hospital works, then come along to our open day and find out more about it."

"As well as touring our facilities and meeting staff, visitors can learn more about the work of the charity, caring for pets and career information. We are also preparing a range of stalls, activities and competitions, so people of all ages have plenty to enjoy."

Veterinary staff treat about 100 pets every day and perform more than 50,000 treatments each year, ranging from major surgery to X-rays and in-patient care. The hospital has six consulting rooms, two operating theatres, a waiting room, dispensary and recovery kennels for cats and dogs.

The facility costs more than £750,000 a year to run, all of which is raised through charitable donations. For further details on the open day call 01634 376347.

Air ambulance winner's delight at £25,000 prize

A WOMAN from Chatham has scooped £25,000 in the first Kent Air Ambulance Superdraw.

Daphne Hanson visited the service's HQ in Marden this week to pick up her jackpot cheque. She said: "This is wonderful news. Not only will it give us the opportunity to do many things that we otherwise wouldn't be able to, but it will also give us the chance to make donations to our favourite charities."

KAA's lottery manager, Lynne Mitchell, said: "One of the most pleasurable parts of my job is ringing our lucky weekly winner to tell them that they have won £1,000, so to be able to tell Mrs Hanson she had won £25,000 was phenomenal. The fact that she was also one of our first members of the regular lottery makes it even more rewarding."

The air ambulance lotteries raise valuable funds to ensure the lifesaving helicopter remains operational.

MOST A-PEELING: Karen and Julie, the biking bananas

Slippery challenge for banana sisters

SISTERS Karen and Julie Dockwray are hoping to raise £750 for charity next month by completing a gruelling 25-mile bike ride dressed as bananas.

The charitable pair will dress up on Sunday September 14 in aid of Cerebral Palsy Care, starting and finishing at the charity's Cliffe Woods base.

Karen said: "The route takes you us over the Hoo Peninsula so will give a lot of people the chance to laugh at us."

"This really is a slippery challenge that needs your support. "We know we are bonkers but we really want to raise loads of money for the fantastic charity CPC."

CPC provides special needs services and educational support to people of all ages who suffer from a wide range of disabilities.

QUESTION & ANSWER

LUCIE POLLARD

Q Can you tell us a little about yourself?

A I have been with the University of Greenwich for 10 years, having started as a lecturer in nutrition. I am now the director of learning and quality for the School of Science. During my time at Medway, I have seen the campus grow out of all recognition to what it is today – a fantastic facility.

Q What are your responsibilities at the University of Greenwich at Medway?

A Apart from lecturing, one of my responsibilities is overseeing the admissions process for the School of Science. Looking through the UCAS forms of students who want to come and study here as well as those who enter the system via clearing can be a very hectic job, but something I really enjoy.

Q What's the best part of your job?

A Lecturing and teaching is why I came here and remains the best aspect of my job. I love being with students who are genuinely interested in the same subjects as me. I like hearing their views and answering questions.

It's great to be in a job where you are dealing with like-minded people. Students have changed in their aims over recent years. When I started we were seeing people interested purely in the subject whereas now they want to study something with more of a specific career in mind. At the School of Science we have a good track record of students going into employment or continuing their studies following the completion of degrees. We have strong links with relevant companies and organisations in our field and believe we produce professionally ready graduates, who are very employable.

Q And the worst parts of the job?

A Paperwork – administration is a huge part of my job and it has to be done but it is not always enjoyable.

Q Why should potential students consider the University of Greenwich at Medway?

A The Medway campus – dating from 1903 – has benefited from £50 million in investment since 1996. Extensive new laboratories and research facilities have been opened and the university has linked with other educational establishments to develop the campus as a major higher education centre in the Medway region known collectively as the Universities at Medway.

The facilities now available at the Medway campus are second to none. From the Drill Hall Library through to the newly converted Pilkington Building, we are very fortunate to be able to offer students an amazing place to study and interact.

Greenwich also has a great reputation for student support and is a very welcoming place to come and study with lots to see and get involved with. The standard of teaching is excellent as are the laboratories, where students can pick up practical experience. From a basic economic point of view, the university has some of the lowest tuition fees in the country.

Q What are your top tips for anyone going through the clearing process?

A Don't panic is always the best advice. If your grades aren't what you had hoped for, it doesn't mean you can't go to university and your final destination doesn't have to be sorted out on the spot.

Take time to think about where you want to go and where you want to be in three years' time. Get along to open days and find out as much information as you can about prospective courses – do they contain the elements you are interested in?

You don't have to take the first offer you are made. Think about other aspects of university life such as the atmosphere and the facilities as well as perhaps the clubs and organisations run by the students. Mature and part-time students should also think about clearing as it's not too late for them to get a place for this September.

Q What do you like doing when you are not working?

A I like to relax with a good book away from work or spend time with my family. Also, as my job can involve a lot of sitting around, I like to get out about and do something energetic.

Kent regiments in anti-Taliban action

Reporter Jamie McGinnes has flown out to Afghanistan to join our troops on the front line in the fight against the Taliban. In the second of his exclusive reports from Helmand Province, he brings us news of renewed hostilities

HUNDREDS of soldiers have been involved in an operation to root out the Taliban near the key town of Musa Qala.

Troops from the Canterbury-based Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders (5 Scots) and the Princess of Wales's Royal Regiment (PWRR), Kent's county regiment, were among 800 soldiers to take part in the fighting, which began on Thursday.

Major Ben Baker, 35, from 2PWRR, is in charge of Forward Operating Base Edinburgh, a desert fort seven kilometres from Musa Qala.

He said pushes to the north and south of the town were proving successful.

"It appears to be having quite a lot of success with Taliban killed and injured, people captured and equipment recovered," he said.

Maj Baker said the aim was to disrupt the insurgency.

"It is a deliberate operation to ensure the Taliban is put on the back foot. Whenever we face them head-on we win."

Local reports suggested on Thursday that at least 13 Taliban fighters were killed and a similar number injured.

Suicide vests, as well as ammunition and bomb-making equipment, were seized after

UNDER COVER: Jamie McGinnes (right) and troops sit out a mortar attack on FOB Edinburgh by the Taliban compounds were searched.

About 300 troops from the Afghan National Army (ANA) spearheaded the advance to the south, supported by 'D' Company of 5 Scots, which is based at Musa Qala, the 2nd Battalion PWRR, a few reservists from 3PWRR, and men from the Royal Irish Regiment.

Mastiff armoured vehicles from 2 Scots were also on hand.

Insurgents attacked with rifles, machine-guns and RPGs (rocket-propelled grenades).

The garrison at Roshan Tower, a strategically crucial outpost overlooking the Musa Qala Wadi, helped guide in artillery fire and air strikes. Members of 2PWRR and a mortar section from 5 Scots are there. Paratroopers from 3 Para, along with Royal Engineers, made slow progress through booby-trapped Afghan compounds to the north. Bayonets were fixed as soldiers advanced through fields of shoulder-high crops.

Apache helicopters attacked enemy positions, while F-16 jets were called in for air strikes. Artillery at FOB Edinburgh and FOB Robinson, near Sangin, was also used, including the devastating Guided Missile Launch Rocket System (GMLRS).

Maj Baker said: "It has been relatively intense, with the whole of the battle group, north and south, and Roshan Tower in contact at the same time."

He said similar operations would "definitely" be carried out in the future.

FRONT LINE: British soldiers working at Roshan Tower

Welcomed by a sniper's bullet

WITHIN 20 minutes of arriving at Roshan Tower, a Taliban sniper attempted to kill me.

A loud crack broke the air as a bullet pinged just a metre over my head. It was a fitting welcome to one of the most heavily-attacked British positions in Helmand Province.

The key outpost, which overlooks the Musa Qala Wadi, has seen an upsurge in attacks in recent weeks.

The tower has a small garrison of men, including members of the 2nd Battalion the Princess of Wales's Royal Regiment (2PWRR) and a mortar section from Canterbury-based Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders (5 Scots).

It has a commanding view of a vast swathe of countryside around the wadi and the strategically important town of Musa Qala, which was recaptured from the Taliban in December.

More than 150 mortar bombs are thought to have hit the base since June.

Somehow only one soldier, Lance Corporal Carvas Garraway, from 2PWRR, has been slightly injured, by shrapnel in the leg. The troops admit they have enjoyed more than their fair share of luck.

The increasing threat to the base meant that the Royal Engineers were part of a convoy sent there this week to strengthen their defences.

After setting off from FOB Edinburgh at first light, the troops reached Roshan Tower, about six kilometres away, at about 8.25am local time last Wednesday.

Twenty minutes later, my tour of the outpost by its platoon commander, Lieutenant Dave Thomas, 23, from Meopham, was cut short when the first shots of the day rang out.

Lt Thomas told me later that the shot had passed about a metre above our heads. The hidden sniper may have mistaken me for a dignitary because of my civilian clothes, he said.

KICKING SUCCESS: Carla Jessup with her IKF belt

Fighting fit Carla wins kickboxing championship

WHEN Carla Jessup started getting into fights at school at the age of 12, her mother knew she had to do something.

But rather than ground the youngster or take away her pocket money, Helen Ingram did what few other mums would ever dream of – she ordered her daughter to take up kickboxing.

"I used to get into a lot of trouble and I was really horrible," said Maidstone estate agent Carla, now 21.

"I was having fights at school all the time and I was always really angry and nasty to my mum.

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

"She sent me to kickboxing to get rid of my aggression in a different way and I'm so grateful she did. I'm a lot nicer now."

At the end of last month, former Maplesden Noakes pupil Carla flew to Orlando in Florida to compete in the International Kickboxing Federation's World Classic event – and came home with the championship belt in the female bantamweight category.

She was one of ten girls to compete in Florida under the Total Kickboxing Organisation (TKO) banner, which has gyms in Chatham, Maidstone and Ashford.

All were hand-picked to travel by chief instructor Colin Payne, himself a fifth dan fighter.

Carla, from Kings Walk in Maidstone, said: "I don't consider myself to be the best of the ten, but Colin trained us so hard and we were so fit for the competition that I think we all stood a good chance.

"It was a knockout tournament spread over two days, so I had one fight the first day and two the second.

"I actually watched the girl I beat in the final earlier that day and was worried because she looked really good."

As it turned out Carla beat Lisa Wells, from Beloit, Wisconsin, by a unanimous points decision.

It was a bad couple of days for the Americans who faced Carla, as she also saw off Stephanie Stafford, from Atlanta, Georgia, and April Simon, of Acworth, Georgia, in preliminary bouts.

After weeks of intense training paid off with her title victory in the Sunshine State, Carla was allowed to unwind when she returned to Maidstone.

She said: "Colin told us to go and enjoy ourselves, so I did by eating and drinking too much, but I'm back training now.

"My aim now is to win a couple more fights and have a shot at another amateur title. Then I'd like to turn professional next year."

Carla will be fighting on TKO's next card at the Casino Rooms, Rochester, on Sunday, September 7. Visit www.tkockickboxing.co.uk.

Virtually brings the gym into your living room

AN ONLINE fitness firm has been set up in Medway, giving users the chance to work out in the comfort of their own homes.

Virtual Gym TV, Europe's only live broadcasting and on-demand internet gym, offers a variety of classes ranging from yoga and aerobics, to pilates and dance.

The work-outs are led by top instructors and filmed at the company's Medway City Estate offices.

Director Richard Davis said: "VirtualGym TV is the only real and cost effective option for those people who can't or won't access a gym for reasons such as having no time, it being too expensive, too far away, or just because they find going to the gym embarrassing or worse, intimidating.

"VirtualGym TV offers a very familiar selection of classes, up-to-date music and the benefit of being taught by the UK's best celebrity fitness instructors.

"New content every day also means it is more cost-effective than buying a fitness DVD, which people tend to become bored with after a few uses."

The company was given £15,000 through Medway council's Partners for Growth scheme, which helps companies with set up

"The company had a sound business proposition and it exports its product outside Medway which means external revenue is coming into the area, which is great news."

COUNT ON US: Math School pupils with results

Hard work adds up to success at Math School

FOUR Sir Joseph Williamson Mathematical School students will be heading for Oxbridge later this year after securing four straight As in their exams.

Sixth-formers Sam Hinkley, Harry Huang, Gary Stevens and Carl Nelson went to the top of the class after attaining the near perfect grades.

Sam was named top achiever after adding a distinction in his advanced extension paper in history.

The 18-year-old said: "I'm quite excited to be going to Cambridge, it's what I've strived for. I've always judged myself on my exam results and this is the pay-off for a lot of hard work."

Fellow student Jack Maddams, who died just days before his 18th birthday in March, was posthumously awarded two As and a B grade, above the two As and C he was predicted.

His parents, Roger and Jane, were due to collect his results from the school.

The talented footballer, who played for Tonbridge Angels and had trials for England Schoolboys, died from a heart attack in his sleep.

Head teacher Dr Gary Holden said his 144 A-level students should all feel proud.

"Today's results are a tribute to their dedication and commitment and to the excellent support and guidance they have received from teachers," he said. "I wish all of them well."

Champagne supernova

BY SIMON ROBINSON

YOUNGSTERS at Rochester Independent College were treated to a champagne breakfast after posting record-breaking A-level results.

The 60 talented pupils notched up 80 As between them – with the top grades coming from just 160 exam entries.

Principal Alistair Brownlow paid tribute to the hard-working pupils and his staff.

He said: "The results have been really great. Overall we've attained roughly 50 per cent grade A exam results, which is getting on double the national average."

"And as a non-selective school with pupils coming to us with significantly lower grades, it's very, very pleasing."

Among those who contributed to the college's huge haul of As was pupils April French, who gained four top grades in history, government and politics, chemistry and French.

The 18-year-old, who will take up a place at the University of York studying law, said: "I checked my results online at home."

"When I saw the As I started screaming and running around the house. I can't wait for university. It's the start of everything now."

"I want to be a barrister and did work experience with Cherie Blair. It was brilliant. I got to watch her in court and she was great."

"I think my grades are the result of lots of good teaching and long days. I was here until 6pm most days, but it was well worth it."

Fellow pupil Peter Shepherd was also in high spirits, after re-sits in biology and chemistry saw Bs turn into As.

The 19-year-old said: "When I got the Bs last year I thought my dreams of studying dentistry were shattered. I was thinking, 'What am I going to do now?'"

"I missed out on the As by three marks and was not happy. But Rochester Independent College has been great for me. I wouldn't have got the grades I did without the college."

Mr Brownlow said much of the college's success was down to the atmosphere the pupils

CHEERS: Rochester Independent College students have achieved record-breaking A-level results this year learn in. He said: "We try to provide an environment where students with the desire to succeed will be helped attain the top grades."

"That's down to small classes – a maximum of eight, which is the smallest in the country – and also the atmosphere we try to create."

"A lot of students are ready for a different environment to school. We try to provide a stepping stone between school and university."

The principal said the colleges' 25th year would be one of big changes. "We are expanding downwards," he said.

"What we are offering now is the opportunity for pupils as young as 11 to come here. We are opening up the lower school to become a college for complete secondary education."

COURSE INFORMATION DAY 30th AUGUST 2008 10am-2pm

This summer we celebrate 25 years of truly independently spirited education, based around the needs of the individual in a happy small school environment. Every year our students excel on short retake programmes leading to places at top universities for competitive courses including Medicine, Dentistry and Veterinary Science. They also transfer into year 13 after disappointing AS results. Others join us after year 11 as our year 12 entry is flexible and allows missing GCSEs to be resat alongside starting AS.

Each week we get a mystery writer to air their views on living in Medway...

Bright young things are the victims of exam-pass politics

THE stats don't lie – this year's group of school-leavers is officially the smartest batch of bright young things ever to grace our country's classrooms.

Figures show the overall A-level pass rate in the UK hit 97 per cent, with more than 25 per cent of these passes coming at grade A.

The brainiest of the brainboxes notched up a staggering six straight As – double the number of subjects most pupils take on.

Congrats to them. Likewise to actress Emma Watson – of Hermione Granger fame – who had enough breaks in filming on the Harry Potter film set to gain three straight As.

Yes, hats off to the Class of 2008, those whippersnappers will surely change the world. Where their elders failed (the poor dunces) this generation is sure to succeed.

Global warming, HIV, cancer, Third World debt, terrorism, the war in Iraq – watch out, the UK's supersmart 18-year-olds are coming for you. That is, unless, A-level exams are getting easier, skewing the results, and our school-leavers are not getting more intelligent year in, year out. Call me a cynic but I think that's the more plausible option.

Teenagers are clearly no brighter than they were ten years ago, yet attainment has continued to rise year on year.

The only explanation is that our examination system has slowly been dumbed down over time, ensuring government targets are met consistently.

Universities have therefore been forced to raise their entry requirements over the years to try to secure the best of the best students.

But with every student seemingly set to achieve eight straight As in coming years, what do the university deans do then?

The student with the wittiest anecdote gets in? A winner-takes-all game of stone, paper scissors? Perhaps a fight to the death?

Some critics have suggested an A* grade be introduced, a higher grade for the most gifted minds to achieve. Calls have also been made for standards to be raised.

Results would, of course, nosedive, but at least then those who attained A grades – with the cut-off mark raised, say, to 90 per cent – would genuinely be worthy of them.

I'm loathe to pursue the clichéd 'it wasn't like this in my day' argument but it has to be said that exams were more difficult to pass in the past. Tests from the 1960s are unarguably tougher than the 2008 equivalents.

And with coursework gradually being given more weight in the overall grades, the opportunity for outside help has never been bigger.

The time has come to raise the bar. Either that or we continue to hand out record numbers of A-levels and a similar number of 'job well done' pats on the back for education chiefs.

Ministers must face the fact that they cannot continue to massage the success of their education system by making exams easier.

If they continue diluting A-levels so every year students do better, then they will cease to have any value.

TALK TIME

MAUREEN RUPAREL

The Liberal Democrat councillor took the time to talk about representing her ward and the controversial proposed Kingsnorth development.

Can you tell us a little about yourself?

The focus of my life is my family - I have four children and nine grandchildren, so keeping in touch with everyone takes a lot of time. Children grow so quickly that it is easy to stop being a part of their lives, so I spend quite a bit of time visiting the various families. My husband, Madhu, is in care, but I like to take him out or bring home most days of the week, even if it is only for a couple of hours.

What ward do you represent and what are the key issues it faces?

My ward is Gillingham North, and Andy Stamp, Cathy Sutton and I, have a lot to do in keeping up with all the developments. At the moment we have the issue of ammonium nitrate still coming through Chatham Docks, the huge development between the docks and the Strand and the transformation of the Black Lion Leisure Centre, not to mention all the various personal problems we deal with for residents.

What stance does the Lib Dem party have on the Kingsnorth development issue?

The first, and main, objection we have is that there has been absolutely no opportunity for Medway residents to have a proper say in any decision. In a true democracy the power company would have been made to fund a full public inquiry so that everyone could learn the facts and assess the real impact that a new coal-fired power station would have on our air quality - and also whether it is really needed or not! Even at the planning meeting elected members were effectively gagged by the legal advice and not permitted to voice their true objections. We feel that the Government has allowed EON to get away with the cheapest option possible and we think the people of Medway deserve better.

YOUR LETTERS

Time to get serious on climate change

As a Hoo resident I say well done to all those who took part in the power station protest.

Let's hope the Government starts to listen to its own rhetoric about the importance of tackling climate change and gets serious about investing in renewable energy sources.

Some of our Euro neighbours are already streets ahead of us.

Wayne Brown, from Hoo, comment posted on web story at www.yourmedway.co.uk

The Tories voted for power station

I am always in favour of youngsters having opinions and taking part in political and environmental activities, and so well done to Yourmedway or interviewing a young climate camp protester at Kingsnorth.

What she had to say was interesting but not surprisingly for someone from Norwich she was not at all clear about what had happened locally.

She was reported as saying the Conservatives and Liberals would not allow the plant to go ahead if they were in power and yet the situation is that the Kingsnorth coal-fired plant has already been given planning permission by Medway council.

In a rather confused and heated planning process the Liberals did indeed vote against the plant and the Labour group on Medway were split, but the Conservative group voted unanimously for the coal-fired plant to be given permission.

It is not enough for a political party to say they have a policy while in opposition if when they are given a chance to be in control they ignore their own policy.

Wrong, Arthur: it just doesn't exist

I have just been reading your story, Old King Coal joins eco activists at Kingsnorth in the August 6 issue.

I would like to say that what Arthur Scargill said about the new technology - which he believes exists and can reduce carbon emissions from using fossil fuels to zero - does not actually exist and never will for maybe 50 years.

Double standards over yard store

I write after reading the comments of Labour MP Paul Clark for Gillingham and Rainham (August 6) on the storage of ammonium nitrate at Chatham Docks.

I find his comments stating he will be making representations to ministers to review hazardous chemical rules to stop potentially explosive materials being stored in Medway as ineffective and committed to double standards.

The rules allowing for the storage of dangerous hazardous substances such as ammonium nitrate were brought into effect in 1999.

Mr Clark could have raised concerns at the time about storing dangerous substances in residential areas, but he failed to do so and it was his own Labour government that signed off this legislation.

As an MP you are responsible to debate and make representations on future legislation that affects residents' quality of life.

I have said quite clearly that if elected to represent the people of Gillingham and Rainham I will bring a private member's bill on this matter, as I feel it is wrong to store dangerous substances in residential areas. Residents' safety always comes first.

I thank all the residents who campaigned on this matter along with me and like all of them, I was delighted with the news that Medway council turned down the application to store more dangerous substances.

However, the battle is only half won: there should be no dangerous substances in residential areas.

Rehman Chishti, Conservative parliamentary candidate for Gillingham and Rainham, by email

Time to change the law over chemicals

I am writing to express my concern about the continued storage of ammonium nitrate at Chatham Docks.

As reported, Medway council has decided to refuse the company's application to store 2,500 tonnes of the chemical at the docks.

However, the company can still store up to 1,000 tonnes without having to get permission from anyone.

I am also concerned that the company may have been storing the chemical at the docks for some time without the council's knowledge.

I welcome the council's decision to refuse the application to store the chemical at the docks.

I urge local councillors and MPs of all political parties to lobby to get the law changed so that none of this dangerous and potentially explosive chemical can be stored at the docks so near homes, schools and important amenities.

Cllr Andy Stamp, Liberal Democrat parliamentary spokesman for Gillingham and Rainham, by email

Councillor survives vote to remove him from job

Jonathan Conservative councillor Tom Mason has retained his place on Medway council's cabinet after a motion calling for his resignation was defeated.

In recent weeks, members of Medway's Liberal Democrat and Labour groups had demanded Mr Mason stand down after attacking his 'wicked' performance as housing boss.

Both parties cited a damning report which found the housing service overpaid contractors £165,000 and suffered from 'a lack of sufficient management controls'.

The anti-prize service was also rated as the worst in the country by the Audit Commission, which gave Medway a damning one-star assessment - the lowest grade possible.

However, at a full council meeting on Thursday July 31, the motion put forward by newly Labour party leader Glyn Griffiths was defeated by a margin of 26 against to 20 in favour.

Speaking at the meeting, Mr Mason said: "The opposition just will not accept the fact that I have been on office for nearly 10 years."

Councillor Tom Mason

Massive failure over housing unacceptable

The Tory-led council should be concerned that it kept a significant brief in the hands of someone who was so palpably unable to articulate a clear vision for housing in Medway and who clearly lacked the qualifications to manage this mandate.

Housing is a core responsibility of the council and the report highlighted a monumental failure in management, vision and leadership.

Medway needs a new and energetic housing plan to renew and manage its stock.

Tristan Osborne, from Rochester, comment posted on web story at www.yourmedway.co.uk

Money matters more than our rubbish

SLACK accounts prepared at great public expense by councils give them too much freedom to push millions of people into poverty in this country.

Council tax has more than doubled under Labour despite services failing us.

Conservatives never miss a trick when it comes to squeezing revenue out of the working poor.

Are genuine unemployment figures closer to 20 per cent of the population, without counting OAPs?

For years 'arms-length management' made them overpaid and redundant, hence their eagerness to make us dependent on their dubious talents, eg. waste collections and wheelie bins.

What profit have German producers of wheelie bins made out of local government's purchase of millions of unnecessary bins?

Why don't young energetic binmen take and return wheelies from the furthest end of house frontages.

Let them engage their brains and hopefully take more care and consideration not to miss any.

Watch history as it happens a second time

Military Odyssey allows you to experience the battles yourself

THE past will come to life with a bang when this year's Military Odyssey brings more battlefield action to Maidstone.

Now the UK's largest multi-period military and historical re-enactment event, Military Odyssey offers visitors the chance to witness history unfold firsthand. On the new, larger battlefield, soldiers, guns, tanks and even aircraft will fight the battles that shaped our world.

To make the re-enactments even more realistic this year, there will be a small village on the battlefield that living history groups can use to create convincing scenery.

There will be a vast array of groups attending, covering diverse periods from the ancient Greeks, Vikings and medieval knights to Napoleonic troopers, the American Civil War, the two world wars and Vietnam.

With both indoor and outdoor trade stalls and rare vehicles on display, the event offers a full day out for all the family.

Attracting many of the top living history groups from across the UK and Europe, this year's event will feature contributions from groups representing Celts, Saxons, Normans, medieval jousting knights, medieval households and Napoleonic times, which include troopers from Poland, Russia and France.

World War One will be represented by aircraft from the Manston Air Museum along with the 10th Essex, the Birmingham Pals and the Royal Flying Corps contingent.

Find out about life during World War Two with the airborne Screaming Eagles Living History Group, the 29th Historical Association, LHA, the 514th QM Truck Regiment Re-enactment Group and The Burma Mule Association with their pack mules and other regiments.

FEROCEOUS: Above, Roman centurions will be demonstrating their skills, and, left, youngsters learn the military history and have fun too

Watch the skirmishes, pitched battles and drills by those on the front line and discover what life was like for those at home with the civilian counterparts. With the opportunity to take home collectable souvenirs, such as toy soldiers and other historical goods, there is plenty on offer throughout the weekend.

One-day tickets on the gate cost £14/£11.50 for adults, £8.50 for children aged five to 15 and £40.50 for families. Two and three-day tickets are available. For more information and discounted advance booking visit www.military-odyssey.com.

Learning to look good

■ Bridal Hair and Beauty

TEENAGERS from the area have been putting their summer holiday spare time to good use in a series of practical hairdressing and make-up workshops.

The Hair & Beauty Training School, which is based in The Historic Dockyard in Chatham, Kent, has opened its doors for the summer to young people aged between 11 and 15 to give them a glimpse of salon life.

Lead stylist and head tutor Georgette Jarvis said: "I teach hair styling and beauty to NVQ Level 3 during term time to adults, but I thought this year instead of closing the training salon for summer I would open it up and give interested youngsters something to do during their six-week break from school."

The first two courses were fully booked within days, but there are limited spaces on the remaining course starting on August 25.

"The courses are run over five mornings and the youngsters learn how to do simple but effective hair styles and on the beauty courses learn how to make themselves look great," said Georgette. "The girls have found it useful because they gain knowledge and self-confidence. They can also use it as a taster to see if they would like to go to college and pursue a career in hair and beauty."

Parents were delighted too. One mother said: "I think this has helped my daughter's confidence greatly. The staff were excellent. I am sure this will lead her in the right direction for a Connections course which we have been fighting so hard for."

Courses run from 9.30am to 12.45pm Monday to Friday. Georgette is planning a series of courses on hair, beauty and modelling in the October half term period. For more details contact 01634 222128 or see www.bhabtraining.com.

Women shape up their lives

■ Think Slim 'n' Trim

A PERSONAL solution to health and weight loss goals is offered by Think Slim 'n' Trim, Herbalife distributor, with ShapeWorks coach Nevil Kapadia reaching out to clients in many different countries.

He explains: "This is a major way to maximise nutrition and potential and customers can go online to see what products are available to ensure their body is at its very best. Often the most available foods are high in fat, sugar and salt and lacking in essential nutrients. This can lead to the body being denied essential vitamins and minerals."

The UK, Finland, Sweden, New Zealand and the USA all boast customers for Nevil's health-boosting range.

One of the most popular products he offers is Formula 1 – a shake-style drink developed 27 years ago. A meal in itself in one glass, it is the ideal start to any day as it is packed with vitamins and minerals, soya protein, carbohydrates and healthy fibre – but with less than 220 calories in each serving.

Nevil believes it's truly life changing, and he's got the testimonials to prove it.

• Jo from Barnsley: In August 2002, I discovered the Herbalife programme, now known as ShapeWorks.

Within a month I had dropped a dress size, plus the extra energy I suddenly had was amazing. The programme has been easy to follow, and with the added bonus of having a specially trained consultant to advise you on how to get your best result, the support is truly fantastic. I thought I was going mad before – basically I feel it has been my saving grace.

• Katrina from Gosport: I desperately tried to lose weight and improve my health. I was running nearly every day, using my gym and trying to eat healthily, but I just couldn't seem to shift the weight. Then I stumbled across the ShapeWorks programme.

I lost over a stone in 6 weeks, and reduced from a size 14 to a size 10. My health improved immensely, especially my energy levels. With the shakes I can do far more than I ever could before. I went on to lose one-and-a-half stone.

TOP TIPS

If you are thinking of purchasing expensive products for a specific skin problem visit a reputable salon with experienced therapists. Book an appointment to have a facial so they can assess your skin fully before advising you on the correct routine and products for your skin type, and take samples to try at home before you buy.

Think Slim 'n' Trim

Start your plan with a positive mental attitude, as your mind is the greatest influence to your success. When choosing restaurant food never be shy of asking the waiter to take off the high sugar extras and substitute with an alternative; you'll be surprised at how many oblige.

Becky's Beauty Room

Keep well hydrated, especially at this time of year. When your skin becomes dehydrated fine lines appear that will later turn into wrinkles! Don't forget spf 15 or higher sun cream too

Laser White

When considering Laser Hair Removal (IPL), check the salon is registered with the Healthcare Commission before you have a consultation and patch test. Asks questions and research the equipment being used as not all lasers/IPLs use or have the same technology. Results can vary greatly.

Tiff's Hair

Tiffs recommends the importance of a fantastic hairstyle that is tailor made to suit your lifestyle and face shape. A Tiffs haircut will be designed and crafted to make the client's hair look individual and personal to their requirements.

Bridal Hair and Beauty

Apply your make-up in natural light. Indoor lighting can cast yellowy hues on you, which will distort the colours in your palette. But avoid applying cosmetics in direct sunlight.

YOUR TV REVIEW

TONIGHTLY

Channel 4, 11.05pm, Wednesday, Friday, Monday, Tuesday

NEIGHBOURS

Channel Five, 5.30pm, weekdays

BY TOM BETTS

IT'S not unusual for TV channels to recycle old ideas in the hunt to fill air time.

All the channels do it and the results vary. Think about it: for every well-received update of a concept such as Doctor Who, there's an updated Crossroads.

Even those travelling cooks, the Hairy Bikers, owe a certain something to the Two Fat Ladies – and I'm not just talking about facial hair.

It is with that in mind that we look at Tonightly, the topical news comedy show currently battling it out with all manner of other nonsense for your pre-bedtime viewing attention.

This is undoubtedly a homage – or straight rip-off, if you prefer – to The Eleven O'Clock Show, so successful in the late 90s and early 2000s.

Jason Manford, who occasionally raises a laugh on the sporadically amusing Eight Out Of Ten Cats, hosts, with Andi Osho stepping into the sidekick role, once occupied by mucky-mouthed redhead Daisy Donovan.

The pair do their best to satirise current events and there a few nice one-liners scattered about, but it's rarely anything more than a one-joke show and some of the edgier comments border on the plain distasteful.

I'm no Mary Whitehouse, but jokes about the events in Georgia just hours after it had all begun were too close to the bone.

If people are being blown apart on the news hours beforehand, you had at least got to make your joke funny or

TITTER YE NOT: Jason Manford, host of Channel 4's topical new comedy Tonightly, fails to deliver make some kind of point, but Manford managed neither.

What seemed edgy just a few years ago now passes as unimaginative and the world seems to have moved on a bit.

The puerile humour that once got a few titters seems dated and pointless.

While its predecessor launched both Ali G and Ricky Gervais into the mainstream, this effort is unlikely to do the same for its stars.

Has anyone caught up with Neighbours since it jumped ship to Channel Five? The always beautiful people of Erinsborough (an anagram of Neighbours – bet you didn't know that!) are the latest TV subjects to make the switch to high definition.

Each episode now bears a closer resemblance to a Hollywood blockbuster rather than a tea-time soap.

While we should be grateful for such high production values, it does make you wonder if Lou Carpenter and Harold Bishop in such flawless scope is a good idea, with dinner just hitting the table.

All aboard the desert camel train

BY RICHARD CRANIDGE

AS soon as you glimpse a brochure from Exodus, one of the most successful operators in the booming business of family adventure holidays, you know you aren't in for one of those holidays where everybody sits around slowly tanning themselves.

But in the bustling main street of the Moroccan town of Ourzazat, across the High Atlas mountains from Marrakech, the cheerful pep talk from our guide was intended to prepare us for the challenges that lay ahead.

Over bread and croissants at breakfast, our guide gave us his three golden rules: 1 Don't drink the water. 2 Don't buy food from dodgy street stalls. 3 Always ask before taking photos of locals (not that they'll want to thump you, but they might demand a few dirhams in appearance fees).

With that, we were off on a 300-mile trek spanning seven rather hectic days – safe in the hands of our trusty minibus driver.

The sun beats down mercilessly on this country for most of the year, with the average rainfall for September just 0.3in and an average temperature of 31°C. Yet in the midst of the arid plains and hills, rivers occasionally force their way to the surface, providing oases and vital agricultural land.

Within these pockets of green, villagers who

SUITED TO THE SAHARA: Camels have a reputation for being grumpy... but they're just what you need in the desert live in traditional adobe dwellings – made from baked mud and straw – grow dates, melons, figs and apricots for sale in local markets.

Eventually, however, most of the water dries up and the Sahara stretches out for thousands of miles as far as the Red Sea.

At the outpost town of Zagora, we left behind the minibus for the traditional means of transport of the Sahara.

Despite their amazing feats of endurance, camels have gained a reputation for being smelly and grumpy, but the ones that took our group of 15, bags and bedding on a two-hour trek into the desert certainly didn't put me off the beasts.

It gave the next stop on our tour a tough act to follow, but a place used as a film set for Gladiator, Lawrence of Arabia and a host of other films is bound not to disappoint.

Our accommodation in the mountains was rather more basic, what the Moroccans call a gite, which would probably just pass the youth hostel test in Britain. However, what it lacked in facilities, it more than made up for in character.

Next day, as a cooling breeze blew in from the south, we enjoyed a walk up into the mountains.

Just a few hours later, we found ourselves standing in the central square of Djemaa El Fna in Marrakech. Fifty miles away, it seemed like a whole world away in its bustling busy-ness.

Morocco provides a magnificent assault on the senses. I will definitely return before the sands of time run out – and it is dragged into the 21st century by nearby Europe.

PROPERTY NEWS

Confusion clouds minimum targets

GOVERNMENT proposals for minimum housing requirements could harm the environment and stretch transport, schools, energy and water supplies to breaking point, says the South East England Regional Assembly's planning committee.

Newly-elected committee chairman Cllr Moira Gibson has written to Housing Minister Caroline Flint calling for certainty on the number of homes expected from local authorities.

The Government says annual housing targets are now the minimum that each council should deliver up until 2026.

However, Cllr Gibson, a Conservative, said this would prevent realistic assessments of the environmental impact of new homes and infrastructure.

She said: "A target should be a long-term goal, not a starting point. Otherwise housing allocations could be exceeded without the impacts on infrastructure, the environment and the community having been tested."

"Government could be creating unnecessary problems by saying the targets are minimums and not allowing authorities the flexibility to spread housing delivery across a number of years."

"This will prevent councils planning properly for the future and create unsustainable developments."

Vice-chairman Cllr Jerry Patterson, a Liberal Democrat, said: "Apart from problems with sustainability, minimum housing targets are unrealistic. Local authorities can grant planning permission for homes but have no control over whether or not developers build them."

Southern comfort over house prices

PROPERTY prices in the South East are likely to remain reasonably strong despite the economic downturn, according to market analysts Knight Frank.

The area – which includes Kent but also takes in London – will do well because of the sheer number of people who live there, say the experts.

Company spokesman Liam Frank said: "The strongest markets over the next few years will be London and the South East due to the weight of demand for accommodation."

The overall market has seen a downturn in recent months, but the very latest figures from the Halifax indicate that this may be slowing down and the sector stabilising.

BRIGHT YOUNG THINGS: Buying a property for your student offspring as a medium-term investment is becoming increasingly attractive, but take care to avoid the pitfalls

What could possibly go wrong, daddy?

AN INCREASING number of parents are benefiting from investing in a student property to help out their children at university, say leading lawyers Moore Blatch.

Market analysts have said the price of accommodation in university towns is low enough to attract investors who feel they can provide for their children and then make a profit if they later decide to sell on.

The fluctuating market is another attraction as many feel that house prices will be increasing again within three or four years – the usual time for a degree course.

Estate agents in Canterbury said they had seen an increase in enquiries when it came to flats usually rented to University of Kent students.

The Medway towns have seen a similar interest in properties close to the Greenwich university campus.

Last year an estimated 3,000 parents in the UK bought a house or flat for a family member to live in while studying and, as property prices fall and rents are on the increase, the idea of buying a cheap property for their student offspring is becoming increasingly attractive.

Market experts say the following advantages can be gained:

- Arrangements could be structured in such a way that any gains in property prices are free of Capital Gains Tax.
- A suitable trust structure can protect the asset from reckless behaviour.

- Rent-a-room relief allows the child to rent out rooms to fellow students for up to £4,250 a year tax-free – equivalent to a mortgage of almost £80,000.

- Other rental income will be charged at the student's personal tax band, which is likely to be basic rate.

Andy Kirby, manager at Moore Blatch solicitors, said: "Many desirable flats are currently being sold at a discount in university towns due to an oversupply and a scarcity of new buy-to-let investors."

"With rental costs still high, parents should consider the pros and cons of buying rather than renting. A word of caution, however: it is essential to place the property in a suitable trust arrangement such that the offspring cannot take reckless decisions."

MOTORS NEWS

Qashqai all-rounder now attacks the Zafira

NISSAN'S sales success with its Qashqai all-rounder was virtually guaranteed by axing three cars to make way for it.

The dull Almera family hatch, Primera family car and ailing Tino MPV all went, but their replacement competes so well on so many levels as part family hatch-back, part family wagon, part SUV and part MPV, while all-wheel drive models can even hack it a little off-road.

And now Nissan wants to add seven-seat midi-MPV power in the sector dominated by the Vauxhall Zafira, by offering the new Qashqai+2 in October from £17,199.

Latest Cayman poses 911 query over style

PORSCHE'S mid-range Cayman model has a new flagship – the S Sport, on sale from September 13 at £48,890.

Derived from the long-running Boxster roadster in 2005, the Cayman proved so successful that some experts queried whether it threatened the German sporting marque's 'icon' – the legendary rear-engine 911.

The new Cayman's flat-six boxer engine has 12bhp more power than the standard Cayman S and even looks like a 911 GT3 RS when decked out in that model's trademark orange or green with side flashes, as pictured.

Leaner, greener, beamer

BMW'S most affordable croptop – the 1-Series Convertible – has two leaner and greener options.

They are the 118d and 123d (from £23,660) with the former featuring BMW's most economical four-cylinder diesel ever; an engine that has won the title of World Green Car of the Year for the 1-Series hatchback.

In the convertible, the 1,995cc turbodiesel produces 143bhp, a 0-62mph time of 9.5 seconds, plus a top speed of 129mph, but also averages nearly 60mpg and emits just 129g/km of CO2.

A LITTLE GEM: Nissan has steadily massaged the Micra's exterior detailing to make it more unisex after early versions suffered from a feminine look, there is even a raunchy SR model

Celebrate 25 years with the latest Nissan Micra

NISSAN'S Micra supermini has just celebrated 25 years and the third generation car looks as fresh as ever.

The term 'modtro' was coined for launch advertising in 2002, neatly capturing the car's mixture of modern and retro style repeated more recently by the reborn Fiat 500 and is sure to herald more small fashion models.

It was not always like this; the original 1983 vintage Micra was about as conventional as a supermini could be and was virtually ignored at its British Motor Show debut.

Nissan had the last laugh though when this car became the platform for several limited edition vehicles, two of which are sought after second-hand by UK buyers even now – the Figaro and the snail-shaped S-Cargo van.

No doubt spurred on by these funky creations, the 1992 second generation car had a distinctive 'over-inflated' rounded style of its own that also marked a major expansion of the Nissan site at Sunderland.

The current car might be six years old, but is perhaps even more contemporary now that it has the Fiat 500 for company.

Dynamically, it also stands comparison with the newer model, but its age is starting to show against other modern rivals in terms of driving enjoyment and on-road refinement.

That said, the Micra remains one of the best value cars in its class and is well-built with generous specifications.

Nissan has also steadily massaged exterior detailing to make it more unisex after early versions suffered from a rather more feminine look. Indeed, there is even a pair of 'warmed-up' and raunchy SR performance models.

The engine range is one of the finest in the sector, making it quite tough to decide on the best option: the Renault-derived 1.5dCi diesel is tempting for economy and power but price and the current diesel versus petrol price differential argues against it.

My preference is the bargain basement 1.2 petrol as tested here; it is good on fuel, keeps you in a sensible road tax band (band-C – £120/year) and starts at just £7,700 in junior Visia spec – high spec Tekna versions start from £10,800.

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

ROAD TAX AND FUEL SAVERS

Soaring fuel prices and a hike in road tax charges have combined with the credit crunch to force a reality check on Britain's drivers. The good news is that you do not have to buy new to slash your motoring costs even if used prices on the best economy cars have boomed while 'gas guzzler' values have gone bust. Our choice here mixes two ultimate misers with the Mini D as a 'left field' candidate that might cost more to buy, but will preserve your wallet and street cred.

MINI D

USED values for the frugal yet lively diesel version of BMW's reborn Mini are steep, but the rewards are worth it; the car drives well, oozes class, will save money while you run it and be worth more when you sell. The downside is a relatively cramped interior in comparison with its exterior – the antithesis of its all-British forebear – and rarity when buying. A late 'Mark II' petrol version with BMW's eco-friendly 'Efficient Dynamics' package is a possible alternative though.

FIAT PANDA

FIAT'S five-door city car shows that a highly space-efficient interior does not have to result in a utilitarian exterior. The compact Italian is also decent to drive, cheap to insure and costs peanuts to run. The original Panda of the 1980s was also cheap and cheerful, but didn't feature the cutting edge technology of its modern day counterpart. A lively turbodiesel – averaging more than 65mpg – and a rugged little 4x4 option only add to the Panda's powerful attractions.

PEUGEOT 107

PEUGEOT'S smallest model is the best-seller of a joint venture three and five-door city car project that also spawned the Toyota Aygo and Citroën C1. All come from the same production line in the Czech Republic and, with minor styling tweaks, are modern, stylish, cheap to run and reliable. Launch prices were not as cheap as expected, but robust new car sales and second-hand values indicate that the public is willing to pay to save money and the planet.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Website nominations wanted for awards

DEAL e-commerce firm Icelab has launched its own 2008 Ecommerce In Kent award.

It is inviting nominations for own shopping cart sites, web shops, or any other shopping cart sites based in Kent to info@ecommerceinkent.co.uk. The deadline is Tuesday, September 30.

The winning site owner will receive a two-night luxury midweek spa break, with dinner and bed and breakfast at Wallets Court Hotel.

The award will be judged by Caroline Chambers, of Channel Chamber of Commerce; Loris Loudon, of Hall Place Business Centre, Canterbury Christchurch University; Simon Teague, of Lashings World XI/Javelin Business Strategies; and David Bentley, of Business Link.

Roadside chain reports summer visitors boost

ROADSIDE restaurant chain Little Chef says there has been an increase in sales since mid-July due to the increase in Brits holidaying at home this year.

Little Chef, which celebrates its 50th birthday this year and has many sites in Kent, reports an average of an eight per cent rise in sales since the start of the school summer holidays.

Reasons are a combination of more cars on the road and a raised profile since the chain launched a marketing drive earlier this year and announced its partnership with Michelin-starred chef Heston Blumenthal.

Chief executive Ian Pegler said: "We expect the numbers to continue to rise during the rest of the holiday period."

Takeover jobs 'are safe'

STAFF at 28 stores in Kent belonging to supermarket chain Somerfield, which has been taken over by the Co-operative Group in a £1.57 billion deal, have been told their jobs are safe.

Somerfield's private equity owners - Barclays Capital, Apax Partners, property tycoon Robert Tchenguiz and Icelandic bank Kaupthing - bought the group in 2005 for £1.2 billion.

Head them off at the pass...

BY TONY PATEY

THE number of cowboy builders and employers of casual labour trading without insurance has risen sharply in recent months.

It is estimated that one in five tradespeople in Kent are risking heavy fines by working without cover.

Research by small business insurer Insurantz, a division of the Jardine LloydThompson Group, shows that thousands of uninsured companies are risking fines of up to £2,500 a day and even negligence claims against them. And many don't even know their statutory obligations.

The credit crunch has put thousands of construction jobs at risk, and tradesmen, from plumbers to plasterers, are increasingly expected to seek out ad hoc independent jobs - often working at a number of locations.

But if they operate without public liability and statutory employer's liability insurance, they'll be putting themselves on the line.

Julia Evans, chief executive of the National Federation of Builders, said: "As conditions become increasingly tough for smaller firms, Kent business owners will naturally want to cut down on overheads."

"But operating without adequate insurance cover exposes them to far greater levels of risk than a downturn."

Another consideration is damage or injury caused to third parties. Although some casual workers will be covered by main contractor's insurance, they may still need to carry public liability cover against damage to a third party property or injury through negligence.

Ms Evans said: "You cannot legally trade without employer's liability insurance, meaning you could face huge penalties or even prison if you fail to ensure you have this cover."

"Having no public liability insurance also makes you personally liable for being sued - meaning your own assets are at risk as well as your business's."

James Pickering, managing director of Insurantz, said: "Our research has revealed that 29 per cent of small businesses run by tradespeople from Kent aren't aware of the statutory need for employer's liability if they employ anyone either on a full-time or casual basis.

"Failure in not taking out cover could result in fines of up to £2,500 a day and the potential of crippling costs for damages if anyone employed is injured. British builders must take action to make sure that they can trade safely."

Increasingly, small businesses and sole traders are using online services to make their lives quicker and easier. Tax returns are now completed online and Datamonitor research has recently highlighted that employer's liability is the type of cover most likely to be bought online.

Mr Pickering added: "Employer's and public liability are among the easiest of policies to buy."

KEEP ME COVERED: Cowboy builders could be riding for a fall - and heavy fines - if they operate without insurance

No-show Spitfires let down the travelling hordes

Picture: ADY KERRY

PACE IN THE PACK: Robbie Joseph's display was one positive for Kent

THOUSANDS of Kent Spitfires fans flocked to the home of cricket on Saturday morning for the county's first Lord's appearance in 11 years.

By the evening, many were probably wondering why they had bothered.

From the moment Kent captain Rob Key was wrongly given out for a phantom edge in the fifth over, the Spitfires handed the initiative to the Essex Eagles, who did not let go.

Key's dismissal was harsh, but none of the other nine batsmen who followed him back to the famous pavilion could blame misfortune.

Joe Denly was bowled by the impressive Graham Napier in the following over as the Spitfires were reduced to 19-2.

Kent Spitfires 214 all out (50 overs)
Essex Eagles 218-5 (48.5 overs)

Kemp steadied the innings briefly until the latter was bowled attempting to smash former Kent bowler David Masters out of the park. Darren Stevens, Geraint Jones and Azhar Mahmood also got out to poor shots when the situation needed them to knuckle down.

At 100-6 the contest looked embarrassingly one-sided, but van Jaarsveld (58), Ryan McLaren (63) and Yasir Arafat (27) at least gave the Spitfires attack something to defend.

The Eagles had the luxury of knowing they could win without needing to take risks. After Mahmood made some amends for his poor show with the bat by dismissing both openers, Robbie Joseph briefly worried Essex.

The 26-year-old bowled with aggression and took the prize wickets of England pair Ravi Bopara and Alastair Cook. He later removed James Foster, but it did not spark the flurry of wickets Kent so desperately needed.

The match was eventually decided by Grant Flower, whose unbeaten 70 from 97 balls showed, in an age increasingly dominated by Twenty20 cricket, what can be achieved with patience and guile.

County take ECB to task over ruling

KENT are hoping to bring about a change in the England and Wales Cricket Board's regulations after high winds stopped play in last Tuesday's game at Canterbury.

Gusts of more than 40mph prevented the temporary floodlights from being used in the Pro40 match against Leicestershire.

As a result the umpires had no choice but to abandon the match just six overs into the visitors' reply.

Fans were unhappy the game was not shortened or started early so it could be finished without the use of lights, but neither are permitted.

The club have begun talks with the ECB to bring about a change to prevent a similar scenario in future.

Final hurdle seems to be just too much

Saturday's Friends Provident Trophy final was the first appearance of any kind in a Lord's final for 11 years, when Kent were hammered by Surrey in the Benson & Hedges Cup final.

In total, Kent have won just three finals in 11 appearances, losing on their last seven visits.

Their last triumph in a final at Lord's was in the 1978 Benson & Hedges Cup, when Bob Woolmer's 79 helped them to a six-wicket victory over Derbyshire.

Skipper berates team's performance with bat

DEJECTED Kent captain Rob Key could not hide his frustration after the Spitfires lost their second final in less than a month with a limp display on Saturday.

Several batsmen gave their wickets away as Kent were bowled out for 214 in the Friends Provident Trophy final.

Essex Eagles reached their victory target with relative ease in the 49th over to seal a five-wicket victory.

The defeat for Kent came exactly three weeks after narrowly losing the Twenty20 Cup final against Middlesex.

After the game Key was in no mood for diplomacy and felt the side would have to bounce back quickly to avoid ending a promising season empty-handed.

He said: "Individually, we need to start performing. A lot of times in cricket when you lose a couple of games everyone says 'Is it the warm-ups, is it this or is it that?", but it's not.

"Individually, you have got to sort your game out. If you're not scoring runs, find a way of doing it. I don't mean go to the nets every minute, just go and get some runs.

"I don't care how, just go and do it."

The Spitfires captain was unhappy with most aspects of his side's performance, but he was in no doubt that it was the mistakes made with the bat which were the most costly.

A succession of players were dismissed trying extravagant shots which were completely out of touch with the situation.

Key said: "Losing's not great when you have given everything you can give, but when you play that badly with the bat it's a waste of time, really.

"Turning up after all the build-up and everything, and we go and bat like that – it's a joke.

"We were just brainless with the shots we played. I know it's hero and villain and you can say 'Well, if I had hit it for four or six, then everyone would have clapped'... but they didn't.

"It was a tough wicket and how many of us were out defending? Not many. I just think we weren't very smart.

"The whole thing with one-day cricket is you go out and assess conditions as quickly as you can and you try to work out what a good score is. I know we all want to hit the ball for four and six, but sometimes you have just got to hang in there and settle for 250 or 230, or otherwise you are going to come unstuck."

Key's men get back to County Championship action today at Canterbury with the visit of Lancashire. The title race is wide open, with Kent in contention to win their first championship in 30 years.

Stimson angered by player's bad attitude

JUST one week into the season Gillingham manager Mark Stimson has admitted the internal problems which plagued the squad last season have resurfaced.

Speaking after Saturday's 1-0 defeat to Luton, the Priestfield boss revealed there was one unnamed player who was upsetting the unity in the camp.

Stimson spent much of last season trying to move on a number of senior players who he felt were a disruptive influence.

It was believed they had all left the squad, but he was unhappy one player did not come into the changing room after the defeat.

Stimson said: "The most important thing I believe is togetherness. We are 99.9 per cent there. Every single player, except one, who is contracted to the club was in the changing room at the end.

Unmarked

"Some were asked and some were not, but six took on their own back to be in because it hurts, but one didn't. That one person can spoil the rest. I don't expect the supporters to care about that, but if you have been with a team that has won something everybody has to be together. That one can get into two or three people's heads and cause problems. I thought it was gone and the situation has come up again."

Garry Richards missed Saturday's game with a slight hamstring strain, with

Tottenham youngster Leigh Mills coming into the starting line-up for his debut.

The only goal of the game came in the third minute, when Sam Parkin rose unmarked to head Luton in front.

Despite rallying in the second half, Gills struggled to create many clear openings.

The closest they came to an equaliser was in the 71st-minute when Gary Mulligan's shot was cleared off the line and Hatters goalkeeper Dean Brill then denied Simeon Jackson and Tyrone Berry.

The home fans booed the team off the pitch and Stimson acknowledged if the poor form continued he would come under increasing pressure.

He said: "I am not stupid, if we don't win the next two games there will be people banging on the windows calling for my head. That is part and parcel of the job. I am confident something will click and when it does we will be fine."

Last week the Gills boss made a group of players available for loan as he looks to free up some space in the wage bill to bring in new players before the transfer window closes at the end of the month.

There has been no interest so far in Nicky Southall, the highest profile of the group, but Stuart Thurgood is close to leaving for a club in the Conference.

DOUBLE Olympic champion Dame Kelly Holmes believes Kent's 1500m medal hope Lisa Dobriskey is strong enough to deal with the expectation and the challenge of her first Olympics.

The 24-year-old reigning Commonwealth champion from Ashford has been in the form of her life this season, winning the Great Britain Trials and the London Grand Prix last month. Before leaving for the Team GB holding camp in Macau, she shattered her personal best by eight seconds in a mixed race during training.

The Beijing games are Dobriskey's first Olympics and Holmes has warned the pressure will be huge. She believes focusing on each round is the key to be successful in the pressure-cooker environment.

Holmes said: "The Olympics is completely different to any other competition and you have to treat it that way."

"Lisa will have to keep her feet on the ground, which can be very difficult to do at your first games. I have seen her, though, and think she has the head to deal with the occasion. She will be happy to make the final, but in the final anything can happen. "Your first Olympics can be overwhelming, especially when you see the Olympic village, where all the world's best athletes stay. As a young athlete it can be quite daunting, so Lisa will have to deal with that."

Holmes competed in three Olympic Games, winning gold in the 800m and 1500m in Athens 2004, so is familiar with competing in a packed Olympic arena. Although it will be difficult at first, she believes Dobriskey will thrive in the atmosphere.

She added: "There aren't enough words to describe what Lisa will be going through. Firstly the nerves hit you, which is quite terrifying, but you have to put that to the back of your mind."

"Stepping out into the stadium with the crowd is amazing and one of the best experiences in athletics."

"Then there is pressure and expectation on you to perform as a potential medallist, which Lisa will have to deal with. It is a great experience which she will definitely learn from."

Dragons' success gets recognition from peers

RUGBY

MEDWAY Dragons' outstanding first season has been recognised by the region's clubs who unanimously voted them as Club of the Year at the London & the South Rugby League Junior Awards.

The club was only formed earlier this year and has become a runaway success. It is now the biggest junior rugby league club in the South East and several players are already playing in regional competitions.

The Kent club took the biggest prize of the night after the area's 40 other clubs all voted for the Dragons.

Efforts

Top players Gavin Hyder and Luke Edwards made the short-list for Player of the Year in their age group, with both finishing runners-up.

Chairman John Stanforth and junior football rep Andy Dalrymple were presented with Volunteer of the Year awards for their roles in establishing and developing the club.

Head coach Martin Coyd also scooped the Coordinator Award for his efforts.

Stanforth said: "This award and the individual honours are a recognition of the amazing efforts of over 140 players and 50 volunteers at the Dragons who have all played a part of an incredible start for a new club. We have gone beyond anyone's wildest dreams in just six months."

"The standards on and off the field, the coaching, the welfare and the performance of the players have been simply wonderful."

"It is a proud day for everyone involved and we have only just begun."

Chats make hard work of getting winning start

FOOTBALL

Chatham Town 1 Ilford 0

DARREN Smith scored a late penalty to give an out of sorts Chatham Town a winning start to the new season at home to Ilford.

Windy conditions at Maidstone Road meant the Chats were unable to replicate the fluency they had shown in pre-season, but Smith's 80th-minute spot-kick made sure they began with victory.

Town boss Steve Binks was happy his side took maximum points despite not playing well.

He said: "I'm delighted to get the three points because it was a case of digging in and trying to grind out that first goal. We played some good football, but didn't really create many clear cut chances."

With first choice goalkeeper James Tedder on holiday, young stopper James Tedder was handed the number one jersey.

Chats began well, but Danny Larkin was forced off with an injury after only 15 minutes, replaced by the experienced Steve Best.

the game looked to be heading for frustrating a goalless draw, until Justin Ascheri's cross was handled in the 80th minute.

Smith stepped up and confidently dispatched the penalty, which proved the difference between the sides.

Town played Wingate & Finchley last night before two games this weekend in a busy start to the season.

Binks said: "We have four games in ten days which is going to test the sides without strength in depth, but we have that now."

"It's good to get playing, pre-season friendlies are good, but there's nothing like getting competitive games under your belt."
